

I think all of us change our actions when talking to different people. It's a part of peer pressure. It's not bad. It doesn't make much of a difference whether consciously or unconsciously. We all want to be accepted.